FRENCH STAND ON DEBT MADE FIRM

France Considers Herself On Threshold of 'Talk' With America

By FRANK E. MASON
For International News Service

PARIS, Jan. 2.—"France considers herself on the threshold of conversations with America on the subject of the Franco-American debt."

The foreign office, in making this statement today, added while the note of Finance Minister Clementel to the United States is not binding and is only semi-official, it serves as a point of departure of negotiations."

Seeks U. S. Statement

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Great Britain is making an effort to obtain a statement from the United States regarding the French debt, it was learned today. It is also striving to find a basis for mutual agreement governing the policy of England and America toward France.

Premier Baldwin and Winston Churchill held a protracted conference today, discussing allied debts, it was reported.

It will be considered significant in diplomatic circles that the foreign office as well as the treasury was disinclined to discuss "informal and unofficial" negotiations which were said to have been opened with Washington.

Sign Contract For Industrial Survey Here

A Glendale industrial survey became assured today when the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce and M. N. Alderman, statistician, who worked on the surveys of Los Angeles and Burbank, came to a final agreement. The Glendale survey will be commenced about February 1, it was announced after the meeting between Alderman and the chamber directors.

Decision to delay the mailing of questionnaires to firms and other preliminary work was reached when it was pointed out that figures for 1924 would not be available until that time. It was at first intended to start the survey as soon after the first of the year as possible. In this event, data and statistics used would have to have been those of 1923. President D. H. Smith of the Chamber of Commerce presided at the meeting, which took place at the executive offices of the chamber, 150 South Brand boulevard.

BIGAMY CHARGED TO SAILOR'S WIFE

Navy In National Scandal When Petty Officers Stow Away Girl

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2.—The many loves of Alvin Spraggins, chief petty officer of the U. S. S. Arizona, caused the navy to be involved in a national scandal and were the indirect cause of his former wife, pretty Mrs. Constance Hamlin, 24, being held in the county jail today on bigamy charges.

Spraggins now is serving a year's sentence in the naval prison at Mare Island as the result of a court-martial investigation following the discovery of a girl stowaway in his uniform aboard the U. S. S. Arizona.

The girl had been smuggled aboard the ship in New York and escaped detection by the officers until the boat had reached the canal zone.

When Spraggins fell into disgrace his wife, whom he married two months before, claims she discovered he had another wife in Houston, Texas. Presuming that this fact automatically annulled the marriage, she married B. W. Hamlin, another sailor.

Mrs. Hamlin's second marriage took place on June 24 of last year. For several months she lived happily with Hamlin and then someone informed the authorities she was bigamously wedded. The girl-wife was arrested.

She pleaded not guilty and Superior Judge Russ Avery today set her trial for January 14.

SEES CHANGES IN MEN OF FUTURE

Sociologist Describes His Conception of Persons In Coming Years

By O. L. SCOTT
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—Now that he's been inspected, examined, quartered, cross sectioned and generally sized up by the sociologists the average American man today has a good deal to think about if he has any interest at all in what he's coming to.

A composite picture of the creature these social scientists envisage for the he-man of the future, makes him out a queer being to say the least. Not only will he turn out to be flat-footed and bald-headed, but in a good many more cases than he likes to think he'll be, somewhat spineless, laughless, featureless—just what ruling woman would have him.

The average man, judged by the outpourings of the sociologists, will, generations hence, come from the city, be one of a small number of offspring, and have a highly developed competitive intellect, while he may or he may not have been brought up in a strong family, with the chances that he will not.

Different Creature

Furthermore, the average American man is going to be a different creature than the man of any other land, although he'll more resemble the English than any other. He'll be taller, have sharper facial features, and display more energy than the men of most other places. But withal, he'll be a sociable animal, quickly adaptable to his surroundings, but not one of any strong outstanding traits.

Ernest E. Groves, professor of sociology at the University of Boston brought out the characteristic of the future average man, of most interest to the present—the subservience to woman.

"The family, once a masculine affair, is coming to be a feminine one, with the only question now,"

California-Notre Dame Football Game Jan. 10 In Los Angeles Proposed

BERKELEY, Jan. 2.—While admitting that they understood such a plan had been broached in Los Angeles, athletic officials at the University of California today declared that no official proposition had been made to California for a meeting of the Golden Bears and Notre Dame at Los Angeles January 10.

Graduate Manager Nichols made it plain that he was personally opposed to further post-season engagements for the Bears, but at the same time declared that if such was officially proposed, decision on the matter would be up to the executive committee of the Associated Students.

Carl Beyer, president of the Associated Students, stated this afternoon that he had not been notified of any proposal to meet Notre Dame. He said no meeting of the executive committee of the Associated Students had been asked for to consider the matter, and that many members of the committee were out of town.

He said he believed that it would be out of the question to play the game away from home, so far as California was concerned, and did not believe that a proposal to play the game in the south would be seriously entertained by California authorities.

"So many factors enter into such a proposal that it would be difficult offhand to say whether it might be favored by the Associated Students," Beyer said. "The faculty permission, of course, would have to be obtained. I do not know whether or not it would be possible for the players to remain longer in training. They have already had a long season, and it would not be fair to plan to continue it longer unless they were greatly in favor of it."

Rockne Is Opposed to Playing California's Team

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2.—"The football season is over," declared Coach Knute Kockne today in refuting reports that a game is being arranged between his eleven and that of the California university.

"Notre Dame came to the Pacific coast for one game, and one game it will be," he continued. "I'm taking my boys back to their studies, and will meet no other western eleven."

Traders rushed to buy this stock, even though it had moved up seventeen points since the close of the market on Saturday of last week, eight or ten points more in the early trading.

The immediate factor behind the sharp rise in radio, aside from its high earnings, was the report that the preferred stock of the company is to be retained and a stock melon cut for the holders of the common stock, to be followed shortly by the placing of the stock on a dividend basis.

PROVISION FOR 69 MILLIONS OF DOLLARS IN SENATE MEASURE

Newspaper Publishers Win Victory In Reductions On Second Class

By W. K. HUTCHINSON
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—American publishers won a sweeping victory today when the Senate postoffice committee adopted a new postal rate schedule, sharply reducing the administration's recommendations for increases on second-class mail.

The new rate bill, including also provisions for a $69,000,000 salary increase for postoffice employes will be presented to the Senate late this afternoon.

It was drafted as a compromise to meet the storm of opposition raised against the new schedules, proposed by the postoffice department, which would have made publishers bear the burden of the salary increases.

Administration leaders hope to substitute the compromise measure for the postal salary bill which President Coolidge vetoed before the Senate reaches a scheduled vote on it next Tuesday.

Effective in April

The new rates would become effective April 15 and would terminate automatically February 15, 1926. In the meantime Congress would authorize a joint committee to study the rate situation and recommend a new permanent postal schedule.

The committee's schedule would levy slight increases on some kinds of second class mail, reduce other existing second class rates and levy increases in both third and fourth class mail and various special services, such as postal insurance and special delivery.

Seek Magazine Mail

On second class mail the increases would apply only to the advertising portions of publications and only then in the first and second zones. In the third and fifth zones existing rates would be continued while decreases would be effected on the sixth, seventh and eighth zones.

The reductions of present rates were agreed upon, it was said, in the hope of getting large magazine publishers to resume distant mail deliveries, which of recent years have gone to private express companies.

WELCOME FOR NEW YEAR IS VERY NOISY

Many Diners Make Merry at Oakmont Country Club Wednesday Night

Noise of every conceivable sort known to human ingenuity ushered in the New Year at the Oakmont Country club, where Manager Ellison and his wife had provided horns, rattles, drums, whistles, cowbells—in fact, everything on the market for the occasion was given out with a free hand when the clock struck 12.

Like Cinderellas from a fairy tale, the young debs in their flower-colored frocks of dainty chiffons welcomed the New Year outdoors under the moonlight of California, making the grounds look like flower gardens come to life. Inside the din was all that is customary at such a time, while Mrs. Ellison kept the siren atop the clubhouse, erected for the affair, busy.

Oakmont Country club was particularly attractive with its brilliant decorations of red and green in the lounge. The dining room and grill resembled the interior of the traditional ice caves of the northland. The huge chandeliers in the lounge had been covered with streamers of smilax interwoven with poinsettias, while those in the main dining room and grill were hung with icicles. Specially arranged lights carried out the illusion of the frozen northland.

Six hundred guests enjoyed the dinner service, several hundred being disappointed in not being able to make reservations, as the lists were filled weeks ago. As a special attraction the Belcher dancers added to the merriment of the affair.

For the dances, explosive balls of confetti were distributed to the guests, who lingered until the wee sma' hours.

Glendalian Berates Those Ignoring Pedestrians' Right on Street

Editor The Evening News:

From the way motorists on Brand avenue cross Colorado street, one is almost lead to believe that the state of California has invested them with the right to "do as they dang please" simply because they have paid for a license.

As far as I am concerned they will have to do some tall driving if they knock me out of the safety zone, but there are people who do not understand the art of fading out of the path of a radiator. On the morning of December 25, at the above mentioned crossing, an interesting old gentleman with white hair and a kindly smile accompanied by his elderly wife, a little lovable thing who, ten to one is somebody's mother, made three attempts to cross Brand boulevard.

Phalanx of Cars

A phalanx of cars roared three abreast, honked horns and bowled ahead while these aged people stood stricken with fear. Should they write back home and tell the good people that they were having "a wild party" on Christmas morning, some might desire to strike their names from the roster of the congregation, not knowing the attitude of the Brand (of) motorists in this fair city.

There is no excuse for killing or mangling a pedestrian before something is done at this particular intersection. The trouble is not within the scope of the police department and that causes one to think the trouble is in the manner in which the motorist takes himself in his own manner of thought.

ELECTRICITY USERS GROW BY LEAPS

Tremendous Building Boom Over Country Given As Prime Reason

The following dispatch dealing with the trend of rates for electric current from central power stations and the effect of present conditions on the countrywide cost of living is the second of a series by Mr. Royle, the third of which will appear shortly.

By J. C. ROYLE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The number of patrons purchasing electric power for lighting and other purposes from central power stations has increased tremendously in the last two years. This has been due in large part to the tremendous volume of new building which has added hundreds of thousands of structures at a cost well above $10,000,000,000 in that period. There are nearly 4,000,000 more customers on the books of the power companies now than there were two years ago. On January 1, 1923, the total number of customers was 12,709,868. On January 1, 1924, this number had increased to 14,520,097. Since that time, the increase has been at an even more rapid rate.

Of far more importance than the number of customers, however, has been the increase in the amount of current which those customers have used. The addition of each new customer means to the electric service necessity for an investment of $351.30, according to the latest available figures. In 1923 the value of plant and equipment necessary to serve the 12,709,868 was conservatively placed by government investigators at $4,465,015,691. In 1922 the total revenues of the central station company was $1,017,199,083.

Of this sum, the largest single item was represented by the returns from the 12,260,000 customers for domestic and commercial lighting current and for domestic power. This amounted to $507,778,604 or $41.40 a customer. By January 1, 1924, the number of customers for domestic light and power and commercial lighting current had increased to 13,986,778 and the rate of increase in the last 12 months has been even greater.

Capital Cut Down

This increase has cut down the amount of capital it is necessary to invest in plants and equipment for each customer to a marked degree with a corresponding increase in the rate of return on funds so invested. Betterment has not been confined to those factors alone. The amount of current consumed and paid for by each customer has increased without increasing the cost of producing that current in anything like the same ratio.

This has been due to the wider use of labor saving household appliances, especially those of refrigeration. In the larger centers, the equipment of new houses and apartments with electric refrigerators has become the rule rather than the exception. The comparative cost of the use of such equipment as compared with ice varies with locality but in general, electrical engineers say, it is slightly more expensive than for the old type ice container. This is counter balanced, however, by its convenience and other advantages.

So extensive has the use of these home refrigeration plants become that central power stations have had to organize special service staffs to make prompt repairs and adjustments so that perishable commodities shall have no time to spoil.

Influential Factors

These factors are all tending toward a readjustment and lowering of rates of electric current to the consumer and for increased use of additional current. The Public Service Companies must receive a fair and adequate return on their investment in plant and equipment, else they cannot secure the funds necessary to finance new installations and replacements. But if the customers increase and the amount necessary to invest per customer decreases and the amount of current used and paid for includes a greater net revenue, they can afford to readjust their rates on a different basis than that now maintained, according to experts in the power and lighting field.

Many of the latter expect almost as marked development from increased domestic and commercial current in the next few years as took place in the period after September 4, 1882, when Thomas A. Edison opened the Pearl Street, New York, central station with a load of 400 lamps. One single unit in the present Hellgate station of the New York Edison Company will light 1,400,000 twenty-five watt lamps. In that first station 78 men were employed. The lighting branch of the present electrical industry employs over 150,000 men today.

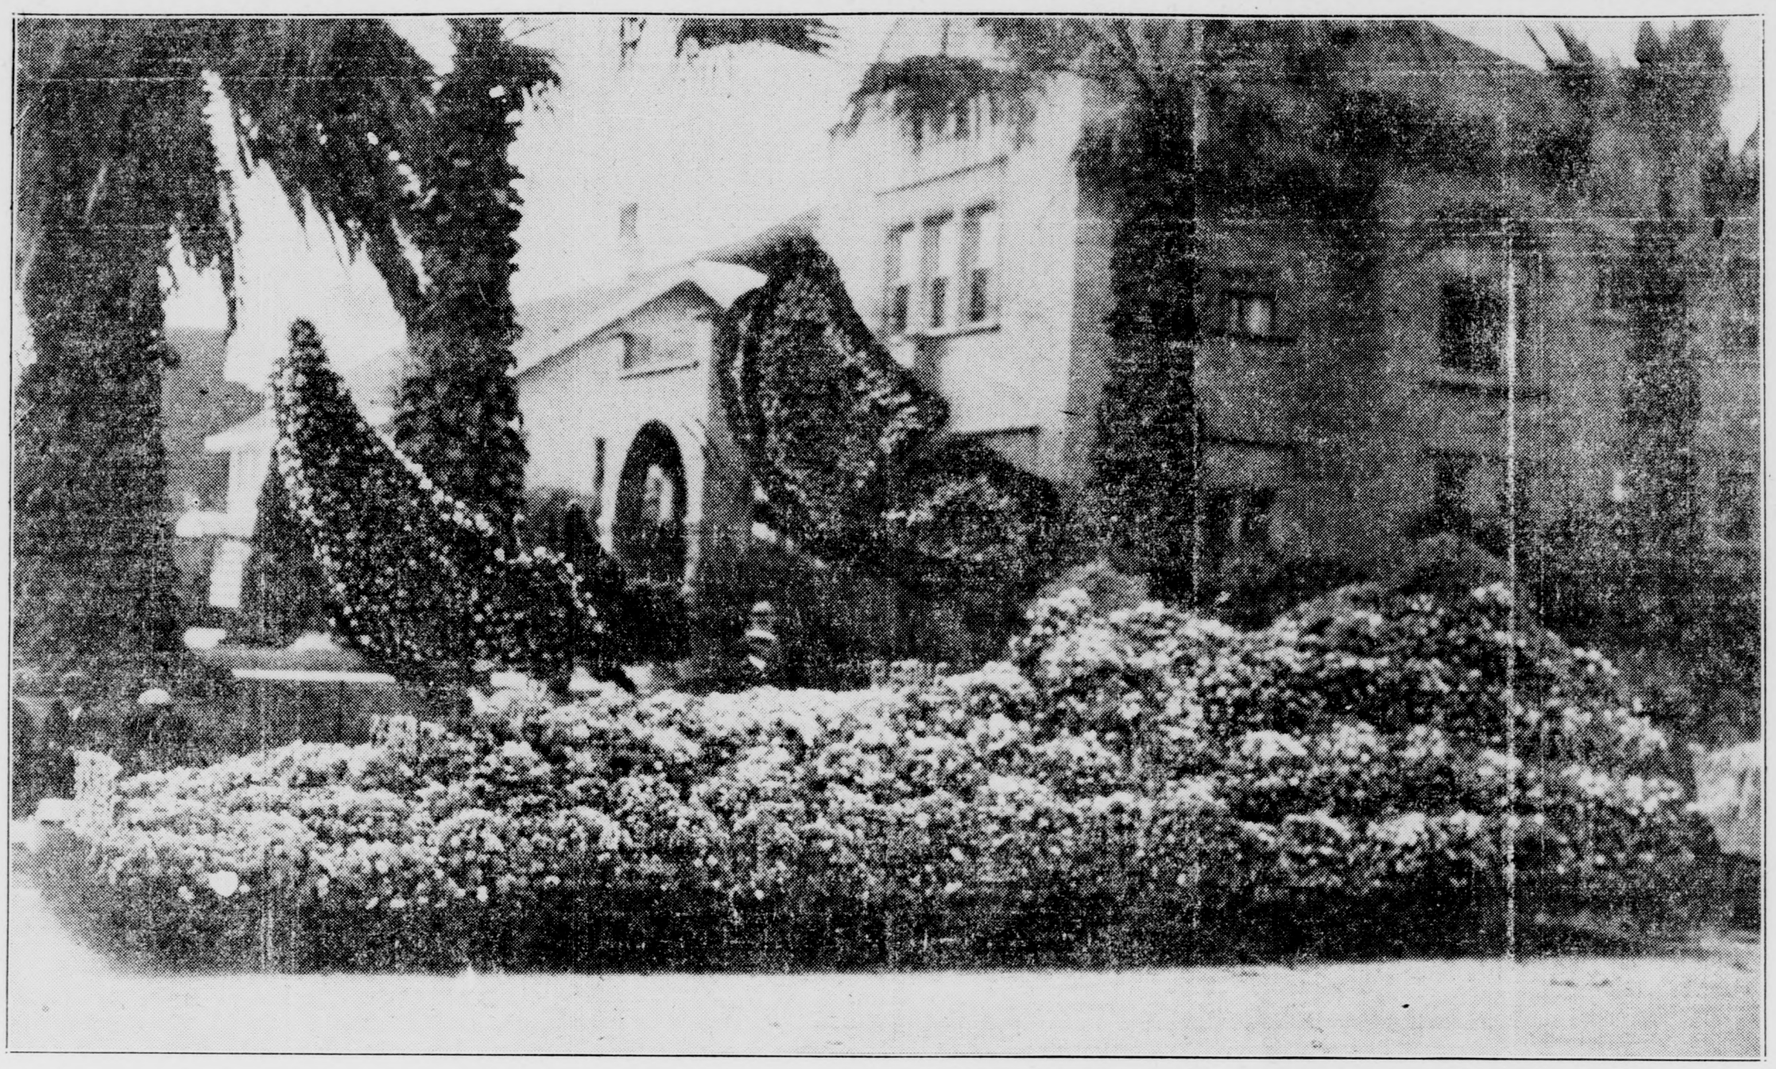
Glendale's Prize Winning Float In Tournament of Roses

Here is a picture of Glendale's float entered in the Tournament of Roses at Pasadena New Year's day by the Chamber of Commerce. It was designed by L. W. CHOBE. The float was awarded FIRST PRIZE in Class A division. Also, the judges awarded it SECOND PRIZE in the sweepstakes. The Glendale float entered by the American Legion in Class E was awarded SECOND PRIZE. It, also, was designed by Mr. Chobe. In all, Glendale was awarded FIVE PRIZES at Pasadena yesterday, something to boast about.



Glendale American Legion Float

TAGGART HOME IS SCENE OF WEDDING

Miss Helene Rickard Is Bride of M. A. Lawyer At Pretty Ceremony

At a wedding solemnized last night, January 1, 1925, at 8:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Winifred Taggart, 525 North Louise street, Miss Helene Rickard of 131 South Pacific avenue and Malvin A. Lawyer, 436 Palm drive, were united in marriage. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. H. I. Rasmus, Jr., in the presence of fifty relatives and immediate friends of the couple.

The rooms of the Taggart home were decorated to carry out a color scheme of pink and white. An improvised arch was trimmed with pink carnations, asparagus fern and maidenhair fern, with a large white bell hanging from the center of the arch, under which the bridal couple stood for the ceremony. Large wicker baskets filled with pink and white sweetpeas, with small green lights intermingled with the flowers, were placed on either side of the arch. Long ribbons were suspended from the arch to the hallway of the home.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, played by Mrs. Percy, the bridal party entered the room. During the ceremony Miss Genevieve Mulligan played on the violin "I Love You Truly" and "At Dawning," with Mrs. Percy as accompanist.

Bridal Gown

The bride entered the room on the arm of her father, C. C. Rickard, who gave her into the keeping of the groom. She made a beautiful picture, dressed in a wedding gown fashioned of white satin-backed crepe and trimmed with silver lace inserted in the skirt, with white ostrich feathers and white satin roses as added trimming.

On the left shoulder of the dress was an ornamental shower of ostrich feathers, white satin ribbon tied with orange blossoms. Silver-colored stockings and silver slippers completed the wedding outfit. Her bouquet was a shower of lilies of the valley, white rosebuds and maidenhair fern.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Best of Glendale, and she wore a dress of turquoise blue georgette over a slip of satin. The dress was trimmed with gold lace. Her bouquet was a corsage of pink sweetpeas and maidenhair fern.

Brother Best Man

Howard Rickard, brother of the bride, acted as best man. Darrell Seguine of Glendale was the ring bearer, carrying two rings in an artificial pink rosebud. He was dressed in a black velvet suit with a white silk shirt. A large wedding cake had been cut, and each guest was given an individual package. After the ceremony the couple departed on their honeymoon and on their return will reside in Glendale.

For traveling the bride wore a cocoa brown broadcloth ensemble suit trimmed with fur and a brown satin hat to match. Mrs. Lawyer is the daughter of C. C. Rickard of 131 South Pacific avenue, and came here about eighteen months ago from Washington. Mr. Lawyer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Lawyer of 436 Palm drive, and is an interior decorator.

Little Players' Member To Broadcast Program

Character readings and impersonations with music accompaniment will be given by Miss Hazel Campbell of the Little Players' studio, 1412 South Brand boulevard as a feature of a program to be broadcasted tonight at 6:30 o'clock from station KNX in Hollywood. Miss Ruth Goldsborough of 1937 Gardena avenue, will be accompanist.

City's Record In Six Years Of Competing

Here is the record of Glendale's floats in the Tournament of Roses parades for the last six years:

1920—California bungalow, with Verdugo hills in the background, first prize.

1921—Three-rose creation, first prize.

1922—Special silver cup, award after decision against Glendale had been stormily protested.

1923—Glendale peacock, first prize.

1924—Fairyland creation, first prize.

1925—Butterfly creation, first prize.

Besides these, Glendale Elks lodge took first prize in their division with last year's float, and Glendale American Legion post attained second place yesterday.

All of these floats were designed and built by L. W. Chobe, Glendale's miracle float builder.

VICTORIOUS FLOATS DISPLAYED IN CITY

Glendale Wins Five Signal Honors In Tournament of Roses Contest Over Entries From All Southland

Glendale and her citizenry celebrate today! Although yesterday was the holiday over the rest of the world, Glendale in recent years has celebrated January 2 with probably greater rejoicing than the New Year itself. The Pasadena Tournament of Roses parade is the main contributing reason.

For the sixth consecutive time last night, Glendale's flower-bedecked float entry in the Pasadena parade, returned home victorious over the entries of all other cities of Southern California. Glendale took first honors in Division A, winning over Long Beach, which took second; Pacific Palisades, third; Ontario and Uplands, fourth; Catalina Island, fifth; Tujunga, sixth; Flintridge, seventh, and a dozen other cities which entered the competition.

Glendale was five times victorious in yesterday's parade. This city's entry, besides taking first in the civic division, was awarded second prize by the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce in their sweepstakes awards. First sweepstakes went to Angelus Temple float entered by Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson. The Glendale American Legion entry took second place in the Legion division and captured the James A. Drain cup, offered by the Legion's national commander, who viewed the parade and voiced his admiration at the Glendale entry. The drum and bugle corps of the local post took first prize.

Today the two Glendale floats stood on exhibition at the corner of Brand boulevard and Broadway, where thousands of Glendalians who were unable to get to the parade, viewed them. Reposing high among the flowery clouds which form the body work on the civic entry, is a large blue and white banner, symbolic of first prize honors which came to Glendale for the fifth time in six years yesterday.

Only once since 1920 has a Glendale entry trailed any other city in the tournament. This one instance was in 1922 when first honors were given to Portland, Ore. So great was the storm of protest over the decision of the judges, however, that a handsome special cup was awarded to Glendale on that occasion.

Great praise was being given L. W. Chobe, designer and builder of both Glendale entries in yesterday's parade. It was Mr. Chobe's sixth consecutive triumph since he started building prize-winning floats for Glendale in 1920. Never in the last six tournaments have the works of Mr. Chobe failed to bring the loudest plaudits of the hundreds of thousands who line Pasadena's streets each New Year's day.

Glendale's float was placed in the middle of the civic division. As it moved gracefully by, the wings of the three gorgeously tinted butterflies moving in the sunlight, more than 500,000 persons acclaimed it the most beautiful in the parade, applauding furiously. All eyes were on the Glendale entry. From the start of the parade until the Glendale float hove in sight, "Where is

CHURCH TAKES LONG STEPS FORWARD

Central Christian Under Rev. Cole Advances Greatly In Eight Years

Fellowship among members of Central Christian church was renewed on New Year's eve, when approximately 300 members gathered in the church parlors for the eighth anniversary of the coming of Rev. Clifford A. Cole to the pastorate. It was the annual church meeting, and reports given showed the largest gain of any year in the history of the congregation. Figures showed 164 new members were received and offerings of more than $28,000 made during the year. The total resident membership was shown to be 680.

There were less than 200 members when Mr. Cole came to the church eight years ago from the Compton Heights Christian church, St. Louis. During his pastorate in Glendale 767 have united with the church. When he came the church property was valued at $5000, while today its estimated worth is $175,000. Every report given reflected the prominence of the church in local affairs and in activity of Christian churches in the Southland.

Heacock presides

A. B. Heacock presided over the meeting, when reports were made by all officers of the church and heads of all departments. The church school showed an average gain in attendance of 25 per cent; the missionary society has grown to 209 members, and the young people's department is the largest and livest the church has ever had. During the evening praise was given Floyd Mercer, associate pastor and director of education.

Following the election of officers a musical and literary program was given under the direction of Mrs. C. C. Stoler. Refreshments were served and watch service held.

Americans have purchased two companies that give them control of the water supply and the electric light and street railway services of Matanzas, Cuba.

DISGRUNTLED CITIZENS

Vituperation and slander of the worst kind are being hurled at Southern California at the present time by a few disgruntled residents in co-operation with some in the east who would like to live in this sunny land but cannot raise the price of a ticket. If Glendale has any of these discontented people they have not been heard from, but the stories spread by others naturally affect Glendale as well as all other cities in Southern California.

A Los Angeles man writing to his son in Indiana about the "plague" in Los Angeles is quoted as saying, "I would like to be 500 miles from here." The only way to deal with a man of this kind is to give him his wish, which, paradoxically, it is safe to say, is the very thing he does not want. Suppose arrangements could be made to purchase his property here, if he has any, which is doubtful. An appeal in the newspapers would result very quickly in a fund to purchase a railroad ticket to some point "500 miles from here," and even farther than that. Loyal citizens would be glad to subscribe to such a cause. But he would resent this and in all likelihood become abusive in his refusal to take advantage of the offer.

Most of the people who live here and who malign the country wouldn't leave here on a bet. They are more to be pitied than blamed, for they just can't help finding fault and they must be very miserable indeed.

Of course citizens have not the power to banish a man for slandering the community and wishing "he had never come here." They belong to the same class as those who are continually blaming the government for their own lack of ability to get ahead. Our government provides for the deportation of aliens who are disloyal. It is too bad that states and cities have no such power.

THE CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

A man in New Jersey has confessed that he started the cross-word puzzle craze. He began by making puzzles for his children and, like all other forms of crime, it grew upon him until it extended to his neighbors and friends, and at length involved the whole country. Everyone is nearly distracted trying to "find the word," and the annoyance is not limited to the votaries of the game, but they do not hesitate to carry their odious questioning into any company. The Indianapolis News thinks an investigation should be made with a view of stopping this craze, and that in the end the dictionary makers will be found responsible. "The dictionary has never occupied a position of honor in the family library," says the News. "Nobody referred to it except in the last extremity. After asking everyone how to spell a word or for a definition and failing to receive the information, the dictionary was approached in an unfortunate spirit. Now the dictionary is the most used book in the home. People who have been content with little dictionaries are buying big ones and those who have thought a big dictionary was good enough are going in for a dictionary that comprises several volumes."

Jokes aside, the cross-word puzzle craze is the most sensible one that has struck this old sphere for a long time. While some of the puzzles are not so good, containing obsolete words and far-fetched definitions and abbreviations, even the worst of them compel some use of the brain, and there is little enough of that required in some of the things with which we amuse ourselves today.

GLENDALE BEST INVESTMENT

There has been a tendency the past year for people to make unwise investments. The vision of riches was the magnet which attracted the hard-earned savings, in many cases, from the pockets of the people. Doubtful promotion schemes took a heavy toll. It is presumable that some Glendale people were among those who made such investments. In buying stocks of doubtful value, distance lends enchantment, for the farther away the scheme, the easier it is for the wily salesman to close the deal.

The Glendale Evening News is not sufficiently informed to point out the merits or the flaws in investments in other cities and states. Many of them are good, of course. But we do know that it would be difficult to find a better investment than Glendale real estate. That is the one sure proposition that we know of in the financial field. You cannot lose. Glendale is bound to continue to forge ahead and with her advance goes the price of real estate.

The conservative man has been going quietly about buying Glendale real estate and making more money, while some with less foresight have put their money into wildcat schemes at a distance and lost it.

REGULATING AIR TRAFFIC

England, Holland and Belgium have agreed upon rules for air traffic to prevent collisions in the sky. Collisions have been responsible for a good many airplane accidents, and air traffic regulations are becoming a necessity to safety. It will not be long until the problem of handling air traffic will be as involved as that of the automobile traffic on our streets and highways. As it is now, there is greater safety in the air than on our streets, but air transportation is becoming more common every day and the time is not far distant when this problem will have to be dealt with to insure safety to those who fly and to those who walk on the earth below them.

The poor pedestrian has a hard life now. He has to look north, south, east and west before venturing a step, but soon it will be necessary for him to look up as well. But why anticipate trouble? The pedestrian will likely be extinct before air traffic becomes general.

PAY AS YOU GO

"Pay as you go" is the motto suggested by the San Bernardino Sun for the year 1925. "America is living at a fast pace," says this paper. "The tendency is to slow down. Throughout the country there is a new view on credit. A person has no moral right to purchase what is beyond his means of paying. Most merchants no longer want a customer to buy if he is not prepared to pay the bill when it is due. Thirty days' credit, unless arrangements for a longer time are made at the time of purchase, is all that should be expected, and all the merchant can afford to grant."

The householder finds that his debts bother him. The merchant needs the money that is owing him to expand and pay his own bills. The banks want evidence that customers can discharge their obligations. If all debts that are due were paid at the beginning of this new year, what an era of prosperity would be before us.

King Boris Searches for Bride

Leap year wasted away, and still a bachelor, King Boris of Bulgaria is looking for a bride. He is to tour the courts of Europe in quest of an eligible princess to share his throne. Here are two views of him, and photos of some of the unmarried daughters of ruling sovereigns: 1—Juliana of Holland; 2—Ileana, Rumania; 3—Giovnania, Italy; 4—Helene (a niece, not a daughter of the king) of Denmark; 5—Beatriz (left) and Marie Cristine of Spain.

Our Grandmothers

By DR. FRANK CRANE

A grandmother has something else to do than grow old. She has her niche in the world, and it is as important that it should be filled as may be said of any other niche.

People cannot get along without grandmothers. They need them and are the better for them—that is, when grandmothers are aware of their position and their responsibility.

In the first place, grandmother cannot be a flapper. She can have much influence with the girls, but she cannot compete with them. Hers is the advantage of age and experience, an advantage which all sensible young girls are glad to make use of; but she is not a competitor.

Grandmothers should not take the position of condemning all that young girls do. They were young once themselves and people in their day exposed portions of their anatomy that they shouldn't, danced with gentlemen that they oughtn't to dance with, arranged their hair in a way to shock their elders, exposed their ankles more than they should, and did other nice and devilish things which every young generation thinks of.

Of course, they have outgrown that sort of thing and the disposition has gone by with the coming of motherhood and of age. Yet they ought not to forget that they once had it and that, so long as time shall last, youth will have its fling.

It is the business of old age to give good advice and to hold the young as steady as they can, but not to be discouraged, for youth is a disease that will cure itself in time; and unfortunately some people who have had it forget that it was ever theirs.

A grandmother who can grow old gracefully, whose presence is always welcomed, whose advice is always welcomed, whose advice is a benediction which, if not always followed, whose advice is a benediction which, if not always followed, is always listened to with respect, and who, beyond all things, does not try to be young herself out of her time, is indeed a blessing.

No house is complete without one, and her place in the family will be hard to fill when she is gone.

Horoscope

Mercury and Saturn rule this day in benefic aspect, according to astrology.

It is a day that should be most favorable to the signing of legal papers regarding partnerships of agreements.

There is a promising sign for all financial transactions and it is particularly fortunate for the paying of bills.

They who settle all their old accounts at this time will prosper exceedingly, if the stars are read aright.

The seers declare that all who keep a firm grasp on money, hesitating to meet their obligations, lest they need the money paid out, will fail to prosper for thus they close the channels of supply.

Saturn is in a place most promising to farmers and all who draw their maintenance from the earth. Unusually high prices for food appear to be forecast for later in the year.

Mines and mining will again occupy a first place in public attention, for new deposits of rich ores are to be discovered in this country as well as Mexico and South America.

To the aged new vigor should come while this configuration prevails. Their counsel should be sought at this time when they are supposed to have clear vision regarding human motives and their results.

Congress will focus even more than the usual share of attention, for there will be unexpected issues that will cause dissenting views.

It will be recalled that astrologers prophesied that in national legislation women would not be prominent, but they are to attain a number of seats in the next Congress, unless all signs are misinterpreted.

Intense feeling for world-wide peace will develop in the new year when many organizations will unite for co-ordinate work, it is foretold.

Fads of a novel sort will engage attention and there will be a strange desire for adults to play as if they were little children, it is prognosticated.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year in which many dear desires are gratified. Business affairs should be satisfactory.

Children born on this day probably will have fine powers of concentration and ability to perform unusual mental feats.

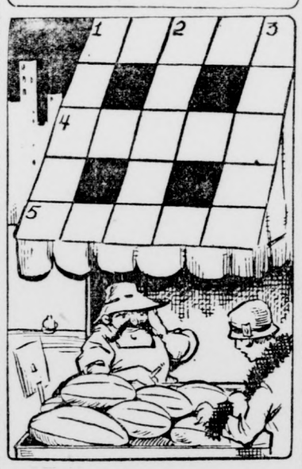
Puzzle



HOW TO SOLVE PUZZLE

The words start in the numbered squares and run either across or down. Only one letter is placed in each white square. If the proper words are found each combination of letters in the white squares will form words. The key to the puzzle—the first word—is given in the drawing. Below are keys to the other words.

(Running Across)

Word 1 the large fruit the lady is buying.

Word 4 what children play after school.

Word 5 what children often have too much of during the holidays.

(Running Down.)

Word 1 a kind of lantern that shows colored pictures: Tricks that sleight of hand men perform.

Word 2 fruit used in making a cooling summer drink.

Word 3 the word you use to describe castor oil.

Today's Poem

NIGHT

The crackling embers on the hearth are dead;
The indoor note of industry is still;
The latch is fast; upon the window-sill
The small birds wait not for their daily bread;
The voiceless flowers—how quietly they shed
Their mighty odors!—and the household rill
Murmurs continuous dulcet sounds that fill
The vacant expectation, and the dread
Of listening night. And haply now she sleeps;
For all the garrulous noises of the air
Are hushed in peace; the soft dew silent weeps,
Like hopeless lovers for a maid so fair:—
Oh, that I were the happy dream that creeps
To her soft heart, to find my image there!

—Hartley Coleridge.

The young man seemed to have no occupation and could give no account of his being here other than that he thought he could get handouts from the homes. He was given ten days in the county jail.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNARD

What people commonly call "Fate" is, as a general rule, Schopenhauer opined, nothing but their own stupid and foolish conduct.

There is a passage in Homer, illustrating the truth of this remark, where the poet praises shrewd counsel; and his advice is worthy of attention.

Schopenhauer said that if wickedness is atoned for only in another world, stupidity gets it reward here—although, now and then mercy may be shown to the offender.

"It is not ferocity but cunning that strikes fear into the heart and forbodes danger; so true it is that the human brain is a more terrible weapon than the lion's paw.

"The most finished man of the world would be one who was never irresolute and never in a hurry."

On the other hand, we may regard the petty vexations of life that are constantly happening, as designed to keep us in practice for bearing great misfortunes.

Schopenhauer said that a man should be a Siegfried, armed capa-pie, toward the small troubles of every day—those little differences we have with our fellowmen, insignificant disputes, unbecoming conduct in other people, petty gossip, and many other similar annoyances of life; he should not feel them at all, much less take them to heart and brood over them, but hold them at arm's length and push them out of his way, like stones that lie in the road, and upon no account think about them and give them a place in his mind.

* * *

And, in general, Schopenhauer observed, if man takes misfortunes quietly, it is because that he knows that very many dreadful things may happen in the course of life; and so he looks upon the trouble of the moment as only a very small part of that which might come.

"It should not be forgotten that misfortune, be it great or small, is the element in which we live. But that is no reason why a man should indulge in fretful complaints.

"Our aim should be to look well about us, ward off misfortune by going to meet it, to attain such perfection and refinement in averting the disagreeable things of life—whether they come from our fellow-men or from the physical world—that, like a very clever fox, we may slip out of the way of every mishap, great or small; remembering that A MISHAP IS GENERALLY ONLY OUR OWN AWKWARDNESS IN DISGUISE."

DEBT PROBLEM IS SERIOUS SITUATION

Diplomatic Controversy With France Seen on Question Of Payment

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2—The end of the year 1924 finds Congress hardly started on its work and the executive branch of the government in the midst of a serious diplomatic controversy with France. On its outcome may depend many economic factors in the year 1925.

There seems no question now that Europe hoped to draw the United States into a discussion of the entire problem of war debts but whoever invented the strategy by which that was to be accomplished knows now that exactly the wrong tactics have been used and that when the finance ministers of the principal powers meet next week in Paris they will find a reticent, indeed silent representative from the American government, instead of an informal negotiator who might have helped to frame a formula.

The French have, by their attitude as revealed by M. Clementel, finance minister, prevented Col. John A. Logan, the American representative from doing anything except listen to what is proposed by the other powers, for he has no authority to discuss war debts. Also the effect of the latest developments has been to stir up Congress so that France will have a difficult if not impossible time trying to float any more private loans in the United States until she shows clearly by acts and not words that she intends to pay her debts to America.

Raise Legal Tangle

There is another phase of the situation which is as troublesome as those pronouncements of the French minister of finance which indicate a possible repudiation of debts and that's the regrettable position adopted not only by France but Great Britain with reference to America's legal rights in reparations and war claims generally. It is significant that both the French and British governments refer to America's "equity" in reparation payments but not her "rights".

The French premier has been quoted as saying that all jurists agree the United States forfeited her rights to reparations by failing to ratify the Versailles treaty, but that America deserves a share nevertheless because she was associated in the war with the allies.

This turn of affairs means that the allies are trying to put the whole argument on a basis of equity and not right, for once they contend that equities alone are to be considered it would logically follow that the United States should regard the debts owed to her by the allies on an "equitable basis". It all simply means an effort to cut down the bill and get easier terms of payment.

Claims Rights Intact

The American government thus far has refused to concede that she has lost any rights by failing to ratify the Versailles treaty. Even the Wilson administration in its closing days while bitterly disappointed over the failure of the treaty to be ratified sent many notes insisting that America's rights were derived from the armistice and participation in the war. Since that time Secretary Hughes has gone a step farther by getting the treaty of Berlin ratified and under that agreement he thinks the rights of the United States have been fully protested.

This is the kind of a question on which the international court of justice could function if the American government agreed to submit it for consideration, but the American viewpoint is quite likely to be accepted in the end by France and Great Britain if it is insisted upon by the United States. This happened before with respect to rights in the mandated regions so there is no reason to expect its repetition. The significance of the controversy is that it reveals the European method of negotiating which is to put as many issues into the pool as possible, hoping to have something to concede in return for concession from the other side.

The whole discussion thus far is more or less indicative of the European policy of jockeying for position before an important international conference, but the American government has been alienated rather than enmeshed. The participation by the U. S. in further parleys abroad and the raising of money to finance Europe's peace time ventures will all be vitally affected unless France in particular comes forth with definite proposals to pay her war debts.

OPTIMISTS HEAR HISTORIAN TALK

Crescent Creamery Head Sees Bright Future For Business

H. C. McClellan, sales manager of the Crescent Creamery Co., and student of modern history, spoke at the weekly meeting of the Glendale Optimist club today at noon, outlining the important events of the past year and predicting a bright outlook for 1925.

The opening and exploitation of ancient Egyptian tombs, assassination of Sir Lee Stack in Africa and the resultant appeal to the League of Nations, the civic war in China, advent of a peaceful election and inauguration in Mexico, evacuation of the Ruhr, the return to power of Caillaux in France, the advent and subsequent fall of the first British labor administration, developments in Russia, American relations with Japan and the exclusion bill, the Bok peace award, the Dawes reparation plan in operation, the world flight, the election of President Coolidge and deaths of prominent world citizens, were discussed by Mr. McClellan.

Encouraging Signs

The speaker pointed out two encouraging signs in predicting a bright year for 1925. The increasing popularity of the national high school oratorical contests and the spread of optimism as purveyed by American Optimists' clubs, were declared by Mr. McClellan to be most encouraging.

The remainder of the meeting was taken up by discussion of plans for the club during the new year. Councilman C. E. Kimlin, who announced his candidacy for re-election, was presented by Councilman S. S. Gilhuly, a member of the club. President H. R. Boyer presided.

Burbank Tent Theatre Turns Away Patronage

Nearly 200 persons were turned away because of insufficient seating capacity at the reopening of the Burbank Tent theatre last night under the management of William E. DeLand. The theatre is offering "Toby's Visit to the City," with an all-star cast of 20, direct from a long stay at Kansas City. All wooden seats have been installed by the new management and the heating facilities of the tent increased by Mr. DeLand, who is an old time showman of wide reputation and now living in Glendale.

WORRY OVER SONG

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Theatre men were divided in their opinions today on whether the theaters would suffer by reason of John McCormack, Lucretia Borza and other famous singers making free "appearances" over the radio.

The first test came last night when McCormack and Miss Borza sang from station WEAF in New York to an estimated "audience" of six million radio listeners.

Broadway theatres had the smallest attendance last night of any night in many months. Theater men who are not alarmed by radio entertainment defended the small attendance by saying that a large audience could not be expected in any theatre on New Year's eve.

PLANS TO AMEND ELECTION LAWS

Assemblyman Walters Sees Increased Registration Throughout State

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 2.—A measure which its author believes will increase the registration of voters in California, and eliminate the necessity of voters re-registering every two years, has been prepared by Assemblyman-elect Byron Walters of San Diego for presentation to the state legislature when it convenes next week.

Walters' bill, which would be in the form of an amendment to the general state election laws, provides that instead of the present system of registering every two years, a voter's original declaration of party affiliation would be valid for all voting purposes, with few exceptions.

Should a voter fail to vote at two successive state-wide elections his registration would be invalidated, and he would be required to register at least thirty days before any subsequent election at which he might want to vote. This clause, Walters believes, would serve as a penalty to indifferent voters who show no interest in national and state affairs.

Changing Precincts

A citizen moving from one precinct to another would be required to fill out a card prepared for that purpose by the county clerks, giving old and new addresses. This would entitle the voter to exercise his franchise without the formality of re-registration, as his name would merely be transferred from one precinct record to another.

The bill also provides that the county clerks shall notify voters when the registrations become invalid by failure to vote at two state-wide elections.

The bill, Walters says, would effect a substantial saving to the several counties in that it would eliminate the employing of deputies to re-register voters. The proposal, he said, contains a number of features differing from similar bills which have been adopted in a number of middle western and eastern states.

SEEK TITLE TO MINES

SAN BERNARDINO, Jan. 2.—Injunction proceedings have been instituted by Campbell Brothers, sons of Judge John L. Campbell, to re-open the fight over title to Coachella valley clay deposits known by the picturesque names of "Great Medicinal Mining Claim," "Pain Killer," "El Solamente," etc. Allen C. Wood and Thomas Ferguson, who are seeking to operate the mines, are named defendants.

In a recent test in Norway, wooden houses with the hollows of the walls filled with dry sawdust were found to be the cheapest to heat.

Using Pipe As Gun Chauffeur Nabs Bandits

PARIS, Jan. 2.—A chauffeur, using a pipe for a revolver, captured two Spanish bandits who held up a cafe in the Levallois district and fled after beating up the proprietor. The captives will be arraigned today on a highway robbery charge.

The Wrath To Come

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM, Copyright 1924

CHAPTER X

They have their own newspapers and they are hanging on to the fringe of a good many others. They're well in with the reviews, they have a strong hold in the colleges, the book counters are flooded with their practically free literature. On the other side there are a fair number of thinking people who advocate America's joining the Pact. But there is no organization, nothing to bring them together, no means of spreading their opinions. You've done as much as one many could do. Five thousand of you might have made a little headway. As it is, Cornelius Blunn and his friends are absolutely convincing the great majority of the inhabitants of the United States that America will sacrifice her independence if she accepts this Pact, that Great Britain is jealous of America's supremacy in commerce and finance, and that this invitation is merely a trap. People can't help believing a thing they are always being told. That is the first principle of successful propaganda."

"I know, Dan," Grant acknowledged. "But we're not going to knuckle under without a fight. We are late starters but fortunately I've got a few millions to spare. I want you to look round and collect as many young writers and lecturers as you can who are inclined to come in on our side. Take those who agree with us from conviction where possible, but pay them well. We may be late starters, but remember this thing won't be voted on finally for two or three months to come yet. I was talking on the phone with Entwistle at Washington only this afternoon. It's a complicated procedure and, after all, you know, we have something on our side. The President and most of his entourage are with us. That must count for something."

"There are drawbacks to democracy," Stoneham sighed. "Also a ridiculous side of it. The German confectioner in the next street has exactly as much voting weight on this or any other matter as a Harvard professor who has made a study of European politics and probably visited every capital. Decision by votes is always bound to have its fallacies. Look at prohibition, for instance, imposed upon the people of America against their wish, but votes. I'm not at all sure that in a thousand years' time absolute monarchy won't be recognized as the only sane form of government."

"In the meantime," Grant suggested, "let's get busy. I'll open an account for you tomorrow at any bank you say. Put yourself down for any salary you like and pay for contributions just what you think they're worth. Scour round the city for the young men who can write what we want—lecturers, magazine writers. We may be late starters, Dan, but we've a great gospel to preach. we've logic on our side, too. America was the first of the nations of the world to propose a reduction of armaments and to strip herself of the means of offensive warfare, just at the time when she, better than any other in the world, was able to afford it. She is still the leading spirit in the Limitation of Armaments. Why, then, should she remain outside the Pact? She lays herself open to conspiracy galore. She refuses the protection of the Pact and accepts the restrictions which her own generosity imposed upon her. And, Dan, let them rub it in. Let them ask where all this stream of literature on the other side is coming from. Tell them straight it's coming from Germany. Ask them if they think Germany has forgotten."

They made many plans and Grant succeeded in awakening a measure of enthusiasm in his companion. On their way out they met an acquaintance, laughing over a cartoon in a weekly paper. He held it up for them to see. There was a little circle of diners, Lord Yeovil in the middle, and before him one miserable chicken, on which the eyes of the sixteen seated around the table were fixed hungrily. A short distance away the allegorical Jonathan was seated alone at a table with a magnificent turkey in front of him. Lord Yeovil, risen to his feet, was addressing an almost plaintive invitation.

"Won't you come across and join us, Brother Jonathan, and bring the bird?"

"Propaganda," Stoneham murmured. "It's damned clever, too. That sort of thing impresses."

On their way up town they passed a procession. They stopped for a while to see it go by. There was a long line of youths marching in fours, dressed in the uniform of boy scouts, with several bands playing. They carried banners, on most of which was inscribed the same or a similar message:

EUROPE AND EUROPE'S TROUBLES FOR EUROPE.

AMERICA AND AMERICA'S PROSPERITY FOR AMERICA.

"I know that Association," Stoneham remarked. "They call themselves the 'National Scouts of Free America.' They have free uniforms, free bands, about six excursions into the counrty in the year, also free, and the treasurer to the fund which keeps them going is a Mr. Hans Klein. More propaganda!"

"Oh, our enemies are thorough enough," Grant agreed bitterly. "They take their disciples from the cradle and rub it all in with the alphabet. And, yet, you know, carefully though they were prepared for it, although they chose their own time, had every advantage science and preordination could give them, they lost the great war. Their detail was wonderful enough, but you can't win on detail alone. I'm optimist enough, Dan, to believe that, as these people failed once before, so they will fail again, and for the same reason."

"You're rather inspiring tonight," Stoneham confessed. "Expound!"

"I do not believe in the ultimate success of any cause" Grant continued earnestly, "which is utterly devoid of spirituality. The Germans started out in nineteenfourteen with every advantage, but with a boldly proclaimed battle cry of material gain. They were opposed by a nation, fighting for their own land and womankind, and there is no cause which can provoke a greater spirituality. They were opposed too by the British, fighting with no shred of self-interest, with no possible hope of aggrandisement, fighting to redeem their word to Belgium, and fighting against the principles which threatened the very foundations of civilization. Then we came in. It took us a long time, but it was very far from being our quarrel. Anyhow we came in. And Germany, who started with every advantage lost. I know as certainly as we walk here side by side, Dan, that Germany means to go to war again, partly a war of vengeance, partly a war of aggrandisement. Well, I think that we shall stop her. There's no soul to her cause. Nothing can flourish or live without a touch of the spirit."

DOBINSON PLAYERS

"I Love You" is proving just the right sort of holiday play to make a popular hit, and hundreds of Glendale theatre-goers are voting it the best production yet staged by the Dobinson Players. The play is being presented at the Tuesday Afternoon club theatre, the curtain rising at 8:15 o'clock nightly.

William Le Baron, the author, has chosen for his theme the question: "Does propinquity cause love?" He tells the story of a wealthy young man, weary of the conventional, who horrifies his guests with the statement that there is no such thing as real love, and makes a wager with one of them that under the right environment any two people can be made to fall in love. In the working out of the scheme is a series of convulsing situations.

"I Love You" was inspired by the popular song of the same name, and this melody is offered in an overture by the Dobinson Players' orchestra.

Uncle Wiggily

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND BUDDY'S CABBAGE

Buddy was the name of a cute little animal boy with whom Uncle Wiggily sometimes had adventures. Buddy's other name was Pigg, spelled with a capital P, if you please, for the Pigg family was very particular. Perhaps this was because they were guinea pigs, instead of being pigs like Curly and Floppy Twistytail.

Not that Buddy was proud, or anything like that, for he wasn't. If ever he had started to get proud Curly or Floppy would call to him:

"You haven't any tail! You haven't any tail!"

And, indeed, Buddy had no tail—the only kind of pig, no matter how you spell the name, that has no tail. Sometimes this made Buddy very sad, for he wanted a tail such as the other animal boys had. So there was no danger of Buddy ever getting too proud and stuck-up, for, if he did, as I have told you, Curly or Floppy would squeal:

"You haven't any tail! You haven't any tail! Yo, ho! You haven't any tail!"

The one thing that Buddy wanted for Christmas was a tail, but he didn't get it, because guinea pigs weren't meant to have tails. And, after New Year's, one day, Buddy went over to Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow and said:

"Uncle Wiggily, I have to go to the store to get my mother a head of cabbage. Will you please come with me?"

"Why, are you afraid to go after cabbage alone?" laughed the bunny.

"No," whistled Buddy (for guinea pigs have a way of whistling when they talk). "I'm not zaggackly afraid, but I'd like to have you come with me."

"All right," agreed Uncle Wiggily. "I'll come. I may get an adventure out of it."

Now, though Buddy didn't say so, he hoped that Uncle Wiggily might find him a tail. That's why he wanted to go after cabbage with the bunny uncle. But, as they hopped along, after buying the cabbage, no tails did they see. Or, at least, if they saw tails, they were all on other animals, who wanted their own tails. So Buddy had none.

But, all of a sudden, he pulled Uncle Wiggily's paw, and whispered as he pointed:

"There's a fine, big tail sticking out of the bushes, Uncle Wiggily. Maybe that's a loose tail, that no one wants, and I can have it."

The bunny rabbit looked and saw a tail like a dusting brush.

"That tail is much too large for a little guinea pig like you, Buddy," said Uncle Wiggily.

"And, anyhow!" suddenly barked a harsh voice, "you can't have this tail! It belongs to ME!" With that out of the bushes popped the Fuzzy Fox. "So you want my tail, do you?" he howled. "Well, just for that I'll take your ears!"

He jumped up and was just going to bite Uncle Wiggily, but, all of a sudden, Buddy took the cabbage he was carrying and threw it as hard as he could at the Fox.

"Plunk!" The cabbage head hit the Fox's head.

"Oh, gazinka!" howled the Fox, as the cabbage bounded off his head, fell to the ground and then bounced up, hitting him again. "Oh, how funny I feel!" Then, with his sore head, away he ran, nibbling no ears that day.

"I'm glad I had the cabbage head, even if I haven't any tail," laughed Buddy as he picked up the sauer kraut vegetable.

"Yes," agreed the bunny gentleman, "it saved my ears." And if the Police Dog will wag his tail at the milkman's horse and not try to arrest him for racing with a jitney bus, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and Bright-eyes Pigg.

Diet And Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

REDUCING LESSON NO. 1

Sign This Pledge

WHEREAS,

I am over-weight and I realize that by reducing I can improve my health, efficiency and happiness, and

WHEREAS, I am one of the units of a great public, and the improvement of the health of its units means the improvement of the health of this great public, and

WHEREAS, I realize my responsibility in the improvement of the public health,

THEREFORE,

I join Dr. Peters' Watch-Your-Weight Class, and I promise I shall follow her directions insofar as is within my power. I shall play the game and do my part. I shall not cheat nor squeal. I PROMISE.

(Signed) .....

* * *

Yesterday you resolved to reduce. I asked you to pledge yourself to me and to someone else. The best way for you to do is to sign the above pledge. You will need all the aid you can get to strengthen your will for it is as flabby as the five-letter word with the chemical formula H2O. I know. As I've told you before, it's embarrasing to me to let you know how much I know about weak will power. This pledge will help yours mightily. Pin it up where it will remind you constantly. It will sink into your subconscious mind and direct you more than you dream.

I shall call for a report of your progress soon.

There is no catch in this. Nothing to sell, no private system to exploit, no drugs to be used. I am simply going to give you a knowledge of dietetics with a practical and sane application for reducing.

I know of no case of overweight that has not been improved by following this rational method that I shall give you. I do know of many cases that have had disastrous results by blindly following advice to cut out all starches, all sweets and all fats.

But we are not going to do that. We will even allow you potatoes and pie! Now you are willing to join the class! Up to this time you were, perhaps, lukewarm, for most of the advice you have read is that you must avoid all the things you like as you would Asiatic cholera.

WEIGHING—

I want you to observe some rules about weighing. 1st: Be weighed in the same weight clothing. 2d: On the same scales if possible. 3d: At the same time of day in relation to eating and elimination. 4th: The day preceding your weighing, eat as near as possible as you did the day before your last week's weighing. It is a good plan to have that day-before-weighing menu devoid of salty or concentrated foods so that not so much water will be retained in the system.

Once or twice a week is often enough to weigh unless you are the fortunate possessor of a bathroom scale.

If you weigh daily, don't be discouraged if on some days when you have apparently been dieting well, you register a gain. This is due to different retentions of water. You may have lost one-quarter of a pound of fat, but you may have retained a pound of water, so the scales will register three-quarters of a pound more than they did the day previous, but in reality you have lost fat tissue. The weekly weight figure is the one to consider because your week's loss of fat should be more than any one day's retention.

Tomorrow continue your shrinking-stomach regime which I gave you yesterday. If you missed it please get yesterday's newspaper. You are going to stay on this regime for three days at least and you are going to jump with joy when you find how much weight you have lost. Don't you feel 100 per cent better already?

Tomorrow I will tell you the reason for this shrinking-stomach regime.

Tomorrow—The Shrinking Stomach

My Dear Followers:—When sending for material which we offer you please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, not over 200 words, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible; if they are of general interest. Don't forget the s.a.s.e., if you expect me to send you the information I have offered.

Chats On Beauty

By EDNA KENT FORBES

CARING FOR THE ELBOWS

Now and then I realize how very ugly human elbows are, when they aren't on a baby or a very small child. Very few women have arms that are beautiful from shoulder to wrist.

Yet the elbows of even the thin woman can be harmless if not attractive. Which takes quite a little care but certainly is worth it.

First of all, wear long-sleeve dresses in the daytime. Short sleeves and sleeveless day frocks are no longer good style. By next season we'll be muffled from our chin to our wrists, though we may be wearing knee-length skirts. Be ahead of the style this season and start reforming your elbows. For the first thing is to save them knocks and scratches and rubbing against dirty articles and furniture.

Then give the elbows this daily treatment: Scrub them thoroughly with a fairly stiff brush, hot water and lots of soap. The water must be soft; hard water gets nothing clean. Scrub and scrub and rinse with hot water and dry. Rub in cleansing cream if your arms are fat, flesh-building cream if they are not, or, if the elbows are really very pointed, rub on cocoa butter. The skin will be hot enough from the scrubbing to melt the butter. Rub and rub, using the palm of the other hand to massage with—this makes a soft cushion and works in the cream very effectively.

Wipe off the surplus cream and rinse with cold water. Be careful that your elbows don't touch dark or dirty things afterward, for the creamy skin will take up color easily. Better try this treatment at night, when the worst that can happen will be a slight oil stain on the sheets, which will launder easily. Or cold cream the elbows as you do your housework in short-sleeve dresses, washing the cream out later.

Bobbie—If your lashes are naturally curly the oil applications will not straighten them. As henna will not hurt the hair, it is better for tinting than a bleach. For hair with the ashen tint, such as yours, a henna shampoo will deepen the shade while it adds a glint; and this will look much more natural than the harsh, golden shades that result from bleaching.

Scrawny Elbows Are Ugly

Mildred—A girl of 18 years, height five feet five inches, should weigh from 115 to 118 pounds.

H. L.—A dry skin will need plenty of cream or a fine oil massaged into it every day. As you forgot to include your address, I cannot send the cream formula as requested.

Last stir in two well-beaten eggs. This makes a thin batter but do not add more flour. Bake for about twenty minutes in a rather quick oven in a buttered pan. Here is another good recipe:

Chocolate Loaf Cake: Cream together one-half scant cup of butter and two cups of brown sugar. Add one cup of sour milk in which one teaspoon of soda has been dissolved and stir in two cups of bread flour. Last, add one-half cup of boiling water in which you have dissolved one square of unsweetened chocolate. Flavor with one teaspoon of vanilla and bake in greased pans for thirty minutes in a hot oven. Put together with:

My Chocolate Frosting: Boil together for six minutes one cup of white sugar mixed with one-half cup of sweet milk and a pinch of tartar. Remove from fire and add two dessert spoons of butter, one square of unsweetened chocolate melted and one teaspoon of vanilla. Beat till it is solid enough to spread. Take care this frosting does not get too hard before spreading, yet it must be hard enough so as not to be liquid. Here is a good fruit cake (if too large, cut recipe half):

Fruit Cake: Cream together one pound of butter and three cups of brown sugar. Add twelve eggs, one cup of strawberry jam, three pounds of seeded raisins floured, three pounds of currants also mixed with a little flour, one pound of mixed peel sliced very thin, one-fourth pound of blanched almonds, one and one-half pounds of flour (six cups) one teaspoon of soda dissolved in one-fourth cup of hot water, two teaspoons each of ground cloves and cinnamon and one teaspoon of ground nutmeg. Mix well and bake in greased pans for three hours (or longer) in a very slow oven.

Sour Milk Cake: (Mrs. F. G.) Cream a piece of butter size of an egg and work into it one cup of granulated sugar; add one egg yolk beaten, one teaspoon of ground cinnamon, a pinch of salt, and one-half teaspoon each of ground cloves and nutmeg. Beat well. Now dissolve one teaspoon of soda in one cup of sour milk and add this alternately with two and one-half cups of flour. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg white and bake in a buttered loaf cake pan for about forty minutes in a medium oven."

FOUR HORSEMEN AT END OF TRAIL

Marvelous Irish Backfield Finish Grid Career by Beating Stanford

By COPELAND BURG
For International News Service

PASADENA, Jan. 2.—When Blasco Ibanez penned his yarn about the Four Horsemen, he automatically reserved parking space in anybody's five foot shelf, but who is the soul today brave enough to rise and say the creations of the Spanish novelist will ride down to posterity with louder hoof beats than the galloping buccanneers turned out by Knute Rockne on the banks of the Wabash far away?

Two thousand miles from home in a strange setting of golden tinted orange groves and winter-blooming beds of crimson poinsettias, Rockne's four horsemen rode wild to the end of the trail here in the annual New Year's day east-west football clash and with a 27 to 10 score defeated Fullback Ernie Nevers and ten other Leland Stanford men. It was a thrill-packed fight that proclaimed the Irish ramblers America's gridiron champions and branded them one of football's supreme outfits. It was the first eastern victory at Pasadena since 1920 when Harvard beat Oregon.

With Shamrocks tucked in their socks and horse shoes in their hair, the Irish were further aided and abetted by two intercepted forward passes and one of those things, known down through the ages as a costly fumble, at the hands of Stanford's quarterback, Fred Solomon. A regular Chamber of Commerce "golden" sun beat down on the invading easterners throughout the game but any damage done to Notre Dame by the humidity was balanced by the turns of fortune's wheel.

Lady Luck Helps

Yet, allowing for the smiles bestowed by Lady Luck on her fightin' Irish eyes, Notre Dame proved better than the best in the far west and galloped home to the oats box with little use of the whip. Superior ability in following the ball, speed usually only seen at track meets and a backfield more powerful than any that ever kicked the turf behind the broad Pacific, was plenty to humiliate the big red machine from Stanford.

While 60,000 California hearts thrilled at their dashing work, the mounted raiders—Layden, Crowley, Miller and the all-American quarter, Stuhldreher, went through their paces with the regular chug-chug of engine pistons, running the ball for four touchdowns, only one of which was earned, while the westerns bucked their way once across the Irish line and kicked a field goal.

So swiftly moved the horsemen that Stanford's huge players, heavier ten pounds to the man, looked like Percherons, afflicted with elephantitis. Save for Nevers and an occasional flash by Ted Shipkey, Stanford end, the westerners were as range stock chasing thoroughbreds.

Every big game has its hero and the New Year's classic which placed the laurel on the Catholic machine did not shed its glorified mantle on the trim shoulders of Quarterback Stuhldreher or Don Miller or Crowley or the fleet-footed Mr. Layden. Instead, it wound itself around and tied a knot sprinkled with star dust on the brow of Ernie Nevers, the greatest back the Pacific coast has ever produced.

Nevers Runs Wild

With a limp in both feet, almost wallowing in fat from an inactive season due to injuries and practically alone in his brilliant performance, Nevers was largely responsible for the Red Shirters' offense and defense. Not content with figuring in every round of the battle, Nevers stood behind his line and heckled the visitors by calling out their plays before the ball was snapped.

The Cardinals completed 12 forward passes against two for Notre Dame; they gained 180 yards from scrimmage while the Catholics did 133; they made eighteen first downs while the Irish accomplished seven. And, in each play netting Cardinal yardage, Nevers was the outstanding figure.

Once Nevers carried the ball, largely through Notre Dame's center, Captain Adam Walsh, to within less than a foot of the Irish line and it was his plunging which showed Notre Dame's line inferior to that of Stanford.

Analyzing the game from a coaching angle, Glenn Scobey Warner, Stanford mentor, today need not doff his hat to Coach Knute Rockne. Warner's reverse play, varied in short bucks and wider criss-crosses, stood the test against Rockne's famous shift and placed the Cardinals in straight football ahead of the team which spilled the Army, Wisconsin, Princeton and Nebraska and other leaders in the east and middle west.

Warner's backfield was miserably weak in contrast to the great quartet — Stuhldreher, Layden, Miller and Crowley.

These four, while the setting sun rang down forever their football curtain, patted each other's backs rather solemnly at the end of the game, as Southern California's citizenry and some thousands of others hardly less elect howled their shouts of victory. They had made their last ride. Maybe the greatest football combination of all times had passed on.

Four Horsemen General Breaks Ankle In Game

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2.—Harry Stuhldreher, fighting quarterback of the Notre Dame, champion of the football game, broke an ankle bone early in the sensational east-west contest won by his team yesterday, but continued to play nearly the entire game, despite the excruciating pain, it was learned today. Stuhldreher's ankle was placed in a cast at the Pasadena hospital.

Golf Review for 1924

By NORMAN E. BROWN
Written for The Evening News.

America is sitting more firmly on the top of the golfing world than ever before in the history of the Scottish game. Europe's women alone saved Uncle Sam's children from a clean sweep of the golfing honors of Europe.

Here's about what happened, as the main golfing events of the year are recalled.

Walter Hagen led the golfers of the world and contiguous territories by winning the British open championship—emblematic of the world title—and the United States professional championship. His playing made him the outstanding figure of the year.

Cyril Walker, adopted son of Uncle Sam, won the United States open championship, turning back Bobby Jones, last year's champ, other American stars and the foreign contingent.

Bobby Jones, Atlanta golfer, after a vain struggle of years, won the national amateur championship with some of the most brilliantly consistent golf displayed during the entire twelve months.

Dorothy Campbell Hurd, champion of the links fifteen years ago, returned to the center of the stage by defeating Glenna Collett, Edith Cummings and others of the younger set and Mary Browne, another star of yesteryear returned to form.

Harrison R. Johnston dethroned Chick Evans, eight times champion in the western amateur event, and won that championship.

Capt. Bob Gardner led his team of American amateurs to victory over the invading British team in the Walker cup matches.

Across the Pond

In Europe these were the outstanding events, in addition to Hagen's triumph:

Joyce Wethered, who comes from a family of golfers apparently, won the British women's crown by turning back the American invaders and Cecil Leitch, long called queen of the British links.

Miss Leitch, to show that the loss of the title had not halted her, went to France and promptly won the French open title, the second biggest prize on the other side.

Cyril Tolley, British amateur star, gave Walter Hagen a taste of defeat by outplaying him by two strokes in winning the French amateur headpiece.

Leo Diegel, modest club wielder of Washington, D. C., came in for no small meausre of fame by defeating Gene Sarazen and other stars in winning the Canadian open title at Mount Bruno, Quebec, early in August. This tourney was made unusually novel when Carl Anderson of Buffalo made a hole in one on the second round of play.

Bad Year for Champs

It was a bad year for holdover champions. Only one major champion of 1923 in the major tourneys of Europe or America retained his title. That one was E. W. E. Holderness, who retained the British amateur title despite formidable opposition.

Holderness' work, however, is not given as much attention as the showing made by E. R. Whitcombe, who came within two strokes of winning the British open title. He finished just one stroke behind Hagen. He led Hagen through most of the play. Later, in what is regarded as the national professional tourney in England he gave an exhibition of golf that drew the praise of the critics and the admiration of his fellow players.

SPORTDOM ALL OVER

By JOSEPH L. KELLEY
Of The Evening News Staff.

It's too bad Ibanez didn't write of Five Horsemen instead of Four. If he had, Ernie Nevers would have been the first of the Five. Knute Rockne has the greatest football team in the history of gridiron classics, but he hasn't the greatest player. He won't have, because he hasn't Ernie Nevers. Nevers is to football what Ruth is to baseball; what Man o' War was to the turf; what Dempsey is to squared arena; what Hoppe is to the green cushions; what Lenine was to Russia; what the Four Horsemen are to the Irishmen. He's a plunging fool with all headiness, diplomacy and sportsmanship of a Cailleaux. How Walter Camp passed him up remains a mystery.

Joseph L. Kelley

The fifty-odd thousands who jammed Pasadena's Rose Bowl New Year's day saw a real football game. They saw the cream of teams battle. They saw the West bow to East in defeat and East tip hats to West in victory. They saw the pigskin booted, mauled and man-handled by the best.

Knute Rockne proved the efficacy of teamwork. Those 50,000-odd people saw speed, clock-work precision, fast-thinking and eleven men melded into one, defeat a brawny, never-say-die, insistent eleven divided among themselves.

It was Rockne's coaching plus Four Horsemen, plus remarkable teamwork against Pop Warner plus Ernie Nevers with intermittent puffs of assistance from ten other men with Captain Jimmie Lawson aiding and abetting at intervals with some of the finest defensive work ever witnessed on a gridiron.

Four men, none of them above the average weight of American manhood, with two of them weighing less than 160, better known collectively as the Four Horsemen, covered ground around 10 flat. The corresponding four men in Stanford's backfield opposed two enemies—The Four Horsemen and their own slow-gaited, weighty persons.

Cuddeback, whose flashes of brilliant work for Stanford in the backfield were dimmed by his pitiable attempt at punting and his sluggishness in both thinking and moving, was a drawback to Stanford's chances.

Ye Ed sat in a box not twenty yards back of Pop Warner, as he sat nervously puffing cigarette after cigarette on the sidelines. As the sun sank over Arroyo Seco and defeat looked certain, Pop pulled on his heavy ulster and puffed harder at cigarettes. Pop need have no regrets. He turned out the fightingest team ever seen at Stanford.

Speaking of Ernie Nevers—don't forget Notre Dame's fullback, Layden. Layden played one of the most spectacular games, both offensive and defensive, ever seen East or West. As one of The Four Horsemen he lived up to his title.

In commenting upon the game Knute Rockne anticipated opinions that would include "luck" in Notre Dame's win, in these words: "We may have got some breaks but it's one thing to get a break, another to know what to do with a break when you get it."

That answers better than any set of words sports writers could form, the "break" end of the contest.

The Four Horsemen proved their fame wasn't widely heralded publicity talk. They earned the title yesterday. They played as a unit and they can take their hats off to Huntsinger and Collins, two ends as fleet of hoof and as fast thinkers as ever wore moleskins, as priceless allies.

It was Huntsinger who picked one of Nevers' forward passes out of thin air and did the distance from Cardinals' 30-yard line to his own goal post in something like 10-flat by the clock.

There shouldn't be any question in the minds of anyone in America of superiority of Knute Rockne's fighting Irishmen over all other teams.

Rockne pulled his old stunt of sending in second-string men. Second-string gang stayed until Notre Dame got ball. First play made Notre Dame fumbled, speaking of 'breaks.'

Rockne had three complete elevens in uniform—three complete machines to maul a pigskin in expert fashion. They all know first of all, that football teams are made with eleven men not one or two.

BASEBALL RESULTS

Ferdie Schupp hurled the Gilmore Oilers to victory yesterday over the Pasadena Merchants at Tournament park. Two home runs by the Oilers netted four runs, while the Merchants crossed the plate only three times. Pertica and Ross hurled for the Merchants. Vache, Chellgard and Blinkiron pounded out homers.

BEARS END FIFTH REMARKABLE YEAR

Fifth Consecutive Season Of Undefeated Playing Brought to Close

BERKELEY, Jan. 2.—One of the most remarkable gridiron seasons ever recorded stands ended today for the Golden Bears of California, who, with their brilliant 14 to 0 defeat yesterday of the great Red and Blue squad of Pennsylvania, completed their fifth consecutive year of undefeated football.

California's attack was bewildering and virtually swept the visitors off their feet. Pennsylvania's goal line, crossed but twice throughout the eastern season, had never been crossed by straight, plunging football.

Yesterday the line of this same mighty Pennsylvania squad was romped over twice by California—not by sweeps around the ends and not by forward passing, but by straight, gruelling, plunging, army football.

Imlay Is Star

The only two scores of the game were made by the Blue and Gold fullbacks, Young and Griffin, by rushing football.

"Tut" Imlay, diminutive California halfback, who rated Walter Camp's third all-American team this year, was one of the outstanding stars of the game. Bert Griffin, sophomore Bear fullback, also played remarkable football.

Captain McGraw and Jesse Douglas, for Pennsylvania, put up a splendid game and were loudly cheered for brilliant playing.

KAPLAN FAVORITE IN RING CONTEST

Meets Danny Kramer Tonight In Bout to Determine Feather Title

By SID MERCER
For International News Service

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The old Queensberry pot in which the featherweight championship has been stewing since last summer comes to a boil tonight in Madison Square Garden to eliminate either Kid Kaplan or Danny Kramer as title aspirant.

Kaplan and Kramer are two Jewish youths who have fought their way through the lists at the direction of the New York boxing commission. Now they find themselves facing each other in a fifteen round struggle to decide which is worthy to succeed Johnny Dundee.

General opinion favors Kaplan, although Kramer is recognized as a dangerous hitter and an awkward man to fight because of his left handed pestering. The betting is 8 to 5 on Kaplan.

Neither is a native or a resident of New York. Kramer hails from California but has been operating in Philadelphia for about three years. Kaplan's home is in Meriden, Conn.

Fight fans will have an opportunity to see their first prolonged fight in Southern California tonight at the American Legion stadium in Hollywood when Pat Lester and Ralph Smith battle for six rounds. Boxing Commissioner Seth Strelinger will be present to watch the card. Other bouts, all of which are scheduled for four rounds, are: Nick Newman and Fred Cullen; Frankie Osner and Teddy Seidman, Dutch Crozier and Jack Sparr, Marvin Shecter and Harry Lee, Red Roth and Charlie Ledger and Johnny Liles and Champ Monroe.

South American Champ Loses to Bob Roper

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Jan. 2.—Captain Bob Roper, rugged Virginia heavyweight, sprang the first ring reverse of 1925 when he upset all the championship calculations of Quentin Romero Rojas in a ten-round bout here yesterday afternoon, outboxing and outslugging the South American champion throughout.

Coach Warner Congratulates Irish Players

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2.—"I congratulate Notre Dame on her victory and on the way she took advantage of the breaks. It was a great exhibition of football, and the Irish have a wonderful team, but I think that I have a better one," Coach Glenn "Pop" Warner of the Stanford squad stated today. "While the Irish did not show to advantage in defense, the Four Horsemen were too fast for us when they had the ball."

Rockne Lauds Fighting Work Of Cardinals

PASADENA, Jan. 2.—"It is one thing to get the breaks and another to take advantage of them. Some might say that we were lucky, but you will admit that it takes a smart team to know what to do with the breaks after it gets them," Coach Knute Rockne of the famous Notre Dame football team stated today.

"Stanford was well coached and gave us a real battle, and we certainly admire their great fighting force."

JOHN B. FOSTER'S VIEWS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1925

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—If worst comes to worst the Boston Nationals may yet dispose of the services of Genewich, who seems to be the best pitcher of a lot that never has shown star speed. The plight of the Bostons is most unpleasant. It is recognized that the team has not a chance, constituted as it is now, and what is worse, it seems out of the question to make a trade with anything Boston has except that which the owners wish to keep for a nucleus.

No team in either league is harder hit by lack of playing talent for the coming season. There was a rumor that McInnis, the first baseman, would be traded to Brooklyn, but there is no immediate place to be filled on the Brooklyn team by McInnis and the rumor probably is without foundation. If Fournier is unable to play first for Brooklyn, the Robins want a first baseman who is no less useful than Fournier. McInnis has been playing baseball a long time and cannot have many more years of good baseball in him. Already he is lacking in the fire that he used to display.

Boston contemplates starting Burrus at first. He is a young player who once tried for first on the Athletics, but was too crude. Since then he has improved, but he is not likely to do much better than McInnis.

Except for Bancroft, the entire infield of the Boston team needs to be reorganized. There is one player who could stand up with the others if the remainder of the infield could only bat. It cannot bat as it is put together now, so the management wishes to make a clean sweep Genewich might be an attraction to a club that needed a pitcher, but the Bostons must get something in return for Genewich will put their team on a firm foundation in other ways. A lot of money has been thrown into the Boston team without result, for the club as it stands today is not as good as it was when it started under the new control.

St. Louis and Boston have been trying to get together on some sort of trade. If there is one thing St. Louis needs it is pitchers, and for that matter the same may be said of Boston, yet Boston needs infielders and outfielders perhaps worse than it needs moundsmen. If St. Louis could be induced to drop off some of its surplus fielders in exchange for a pitcher, Boston might get something that would help. Yet even then the Bostons would be forced to spend for they would have to find pitching support before they could make much headway in the National league.

If Bancroft, the Boston manager succeeds in making anything out of the material he has, he will establish a reputation that should make him one of the best constructive men in baseball.

All the National league realizes the situation at Boston, yet there is not a club that is volunteering any first aid because they all realize they have a nice little tea party on their own hands to end the supremacy of the Giants. New York will start with a team in 1925 that will certainly have no worse chance than the successful outfit of 1924.

Since its gas company's franchise was cancelled by the municipality, Rosario, Argentina, with a population of 350,000, has had no gas works.

INTERMEDIATE PUPILS HOLD ASSEMBLY

Letters Are Presented to Winners In Various Lines of Sport

The last day of 1924 was celebrated at Wilson intermediate school by a spirited general assembly held out of doors in order that the whole school might participate. Miss Carrie M. Noble, principal of the school, presided.

Following singing led by Miss Ettarae Kent, a group of girls, led by Madeline Ruth Finkbinder, presented a very artistic pom-pom drill and two girls' teams gave a demonstration of the over and under relay with basket ball. Miss Lois Hanna presented stars to a number of students as a reward for perfect attendance in orchestra practice.

The attention of the audience was attracted to a gaily decked group of clowns and sandwich board advertisers who came gaily racing across the grounds, blowing horns, turning handsprings and romping with balloons. The gay assemblage proved to be the A-8 class, advertising the carnival to take place the middle of January. Charles Temple, disguised as a wandering Italian and carrying a live monkey, was the center of attraction during the performance.

Letters Presented

Miss Noble introduced Norman Girard, president of the athletic association. After the business routine, Miss Helen Ritter presented the seventh grade girls with their volley ball letters. The chairman then called upon Harry A. Lintz to present the soccer and touchball letters.

The midget team, which had not been scored on this season, was greeted with wild enthusiasm. Donald Turner, whose skill won the deciding touchball game was also given an ovation. The cheers were led by Kenneth McCombs, yell leader. Mr. Lintz stated that much of the credit of the fine showing this fall, was due the coaches, Marvin E. Dunn, Arthur W. Bennett and Byron Wesner.

The only large school letter to be presented was awarded William Delabar, winner of the military drill contest held during education week. The program closed with the flag salute.

Predicts Future Men Will Be Different

the professor advises, "whether woman will hamper man as she has been hampered in the past. Marriage is coming to be more an experiment and not the settled matter of an established manruled home."

Smaller Families

While the sociologists are doubtful about the future of family life itself, some expressed the opinion that it would become less of a factor, but most all said that if the family did continue it would be as a smaller unit than in the past. Dr. Louis L. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., expressed for the other sociologists, the statement that birth control is now and will continue increasingly to be practiced. Surveys of Wisconsin, California and Vassar college graduates showed that the best educated even now are not reproducing.

Although, larger and larger sections of the population are becoming citified, Professor John M. Gillette, of the University of North Dakota, outlined how the man of the future is to be the city man, while Professor D. D. Lesochier of the University of Wisconsin painted him as a future standardized being, living much the same type of life that other men of the world lead, with much the same living standard.

And the saturation point of these coming Americans is going to be far short of 300,000,000 for this country, Professor Lesochier thinks and he's backed up by Dr. Alonzo Taylor of Leland Stanford, who is worried over the question of future supplies of lumber, paper and fibrous materials. But future energy need not be a source of worry if the views of Dr. F. G. Tryon, of the U. S. Geological Survey come into actuality and sunlight, the tides and winds come to be harnessed by that future man.

Wages of textile workers in Austria continue to increase.

Glendale Tavern Raid Nets Quantity of Rum

A squad of Glendale police under Lieutenant W. J. Royle, raided the Glendale Tavern yesterday shortly before noon, confiscated a large quantity of liquor and arrested six persons who were in the building at the time. Those taken into custody were booked at the Glendale station on charges of possessing liquor. A large touring car, found in the rear of the tavern was taken by the police when a bottle of liquor was discovered hidden away in it. Eight officers assisted in the raid. They entered the tavern from both the front and rear, surprising the diners.

DISPLAY FLOATS WINNING PRIZES

Glendale Victorious Over Entries From Numerous Southland Cities

Glendale?" was on every tongue.

As the entry passed the reviewing stand in front of the Hotel Maryland, Colorado street and Los Robles avenue, an official announced the choice of the judges and placed the blue banner of victory on the Glendale float amid the cheers of thousands who had congregated at that point. As the Glendale Legion float passed, many appeared to think it deserved first honors in its division. Although this seemed to be the opinion of a board of judges who made the James A. Drain award, the tournament judges ruled differently, placing the local post's entry second to that of South Pasadena.

The 1925 Tournament of Roses was declared to be probably the most gorgeous in the history of the pageant. Police officials declared more than half a million visitors jammed the Crown City to view the parade. Upwards of 60,000 remained for the great East-West football classic in the afternoon.

VACANT LOTS AND ACRES

One Big Bargain Left!

Of those beautiful home sites we were SACRIFICING — CUTTING PRICES as much as ONE-HALF in some instances—we have JUST ONE LEFT, that, if SOLD IMMEDIATELY, we'll make a price that is LITERALLY A GIFT—a price that ABSOLUTELY INSURES the fortunate buyer a BIG PROFIT before 1925 is much more than under way. SIXTY-THREE (63) feet frontage on paved street, in Glendale's most beautiful residential district; we hate to advertise how cheaply we are forced to sell. However, others ask an average of $2500 for 50-ft. lots, and we'll sell this 63-ft. (ONE-THIRD LARGER) for CONSIDERABLY LESS than $2000. FIGURE IT OUT! You'll find this magnificent large home site is hundreds of dollars cheaper than "little cheap lots". In short, this is—for any purpose—the BIGGEST BARGAIN in Glendale, or any other high class district, suburban to Los Angeles. And while it is a regular "fire sale", only $500 will handle it. Purely as an investthere is no way you can secure such large and quick returns on $500.

EPWORTH LEAGUE DINNER SUCCESS

Eighty-five People Served At Central Avenue Church Banquet

Eighty-five people were served at the dinner Wednesday night given by the Central Avenue Methodist church Epworth league at the church. Proceeds of the dinner will be used for work of the league. Rutherford Wallace, fourth vice-president, had charge of arrangements for the dinner and program. Dr. A. Ray Moore, of Los Angeles, conference secretary of the Epworth league, was the speaker at the program and musical selections were presented by the California Symphony trio of Eagle Rock, composed of Mr. and Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Carey. Miss Grace Claycomb sang a solo and Mr. Percy played selections on a baritone horn. Talks on league work were given by Rev. Leo C. Kline, pastor of the church; Harold Williams, president of the Epworth league, and Noel Scott, treasurer.

WORLD FAMOUS SOPRANO AWAITED

Mrs. Mattison B. Jones Urges Glendalians to Hear Eva Gauthier

Mrs. Mattison B. Jones, founder and president of Glendale Music club, urges all Glendale music lovers to attend the concert next Tuesday night by Eva Gauthier, mezzo soprono, who has won world wide praise as a concert artist. The Glendale Music club has gone to great expense to secure Miss Gauthier, for what they consider will be one of the feature events in club history.

"Miss Cauthier had Boston by the ears," says Mrs. Jones. "At her last recital there last season she gave them culture and she gave them jazz and it embarrassed them. They didn't know which to like most." It was Miss Gauthier who introduced jazz into the concert hall and it is she who is continuing to delight music lovers with her unique programs.

Tickets for the concert may be purchased at Roberts & Echols and the Glendale Music Co.

LOS ANGELES

By Southland News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2.—Activities of the humane animal commission during 1924 enriched the city's treasury by $49,127.14, according to a statement issued by the commission today. Dogs impounded numbered 5618. Of these 4771 were destroyed and 344 were redeemed. More than 31,000 dogs were licensed.

The first Los Angeles baby born in the new year is the daughter of Mrs. Clarence Crabb. She arrived at the White Memorial hospital at 10:02 o'clock yesterday, and weighs seven pounds and fourteen ounces.

Suit for $6000 damages has been filed in superior court by W. S. Ramsay against the Pacific Electric Co. and Twohy Brothers, contractors for the new Pacific Electric tunnel from First street to Glendale boulevard to the Hill street station. Ramsay is owner of the Crestonia apartments at 1201 Martland street, and charges that heavy blasts of dynamite have been set off by workmen in the Glendale-Hollywood-San Fernando tunnel near a point beneath his apartment house, cracking the walls, disturbing the occupants and otherwise damaging the building. He also asks a restraining order to prevent the workmen from setting off heavy charges of dynamite. The order is returnable before Judge Shaw on January 6.

FROM EAGLE ROCK

EAGLE ROCK, Jan. 2.—The recently organized "Date Bureau" of the Chamber of Commerce intends to start the new year right, declares Mrs. J. C. Reiter, secretary, who urges that all local organizations take full advantage of the facilities it offers for keeping meeting times straight and preventing two organizations of similar scope from convening on the same night.

"In short, the Date Bureau is a sort of clearing house of Eagle Rock information," she says, "and the secretary will aim to keep all community events on a calendar. This information will be available at all times."

Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Wood of 5118 Del Rio avenue are especially happy at this time, as their son, Ira A. Wood, and wife and daughter, who have been abroad for many months, have arrived in New York and will soon arrive here. Miss Helen Wood and mother have been in Florence, Italy, where the former has been studying music. Her father went over later to accompany them home. Mr. Wood is in the wholesale coffee business in Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Allen Moohr of 5062 Shearin avenue had as dinner guests on New Year's day Mr. and Mrs. William W. Mapes of Huntington Park, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Heffner of San Diego, and Dr. Clara Moohr of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Slaght are entertaining Mrs. Slaght's sister from Missouri over the holidays.

COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

What more could Glendale ask? It started the year right by winning in both the Civic and American Legion float divisions of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses.

All hail L. W. Chobe! More glory to him and Mrs. Chobe and their many assistants who made the Glendale floats victorious.

In all the world there are not more than four or five float designers who make that their one avocation as does Mr. Chobe. His artistry has brought fame to Glendale, it has amazed the people seeing the pageant at Pasadena each year and it is something which should be recognized by some substantial reward.

If you want to advertise Glendale, folks, send copies of The Glendale Evening News' New Year's edition to your friends and relatives in the east, or in other countries.

The amazing growth of Glendale, its repetition of 1923's record building program in 1924, its continued growth and prosperity, and its future plans, are well told in story and picture.

While local subscribers were more than pleased with the edition they should remember that those not receiving The Glendale Evening News should know all about this fastest growing city in America. Send them the paper.

The Consolidated Press association, which provided the New Year's number with many summaries of national and world affairs, is the only feature service which operates a daily afternoon and Sunday leased wire across the continent, from the Atlantic to Pacific.

There are other news gathering agencies, such as International News Service leased wire, which give full report of all "spot" news events, but it remains for Consolidated Press to supply features on current topics written by nationally known writers.

The San Bernardino Sun with Associated Press report, the Hollywood Daily Citizen with United Press report, are the only other papers in southern California obtaining the daily dispatches of Consolidated Press association.

The Glendale Evening News does even better yet, however, at providing additional sources of news, having a Los Angeles city bureau operated as Southland News Service with two trained newspapermen in charge there. And Southland News Service, representing four publications, has opened a bureau at Sacramento in charge of this writer. Daily dispatches by wire and mail and telephone are furnished their clients.

Any reader of The Glendale Evening News desiring copies of bills presented to the coming legislature or statistical data will be welcome to make the request of this office and the state capitol bureau will endeavor to supply the information.

It might interest readers to know that the Consolidated Press leased wire operator in Los Angeles is Guy H. Payson, a resident of Glendale.

Also, Luther A. Huston, Tokio correspondent for International News Service, and Larry Smits, Chicago and Washington correspondent for the same leased wire to The Glendale Evening News, are relatives of Evert and Howard Smits, two Glendale boys who have "grown up" in The Evening News' office.

George R. Holmes and many other International News Service writers are Californians, which makes their dispatches of greater interest here than commonplace reports.

BURBANK NEWS

BURBANK, Jan. 2.—The local lodge of Elks, recently organized, distributed ninety boxes to needy families during the holidays, it was revealed by the report of A. C. Fillbach, chairman of the committee in charge of this work. The report was rendered at the last meeting and was received with enthusiasm. Notwithstanding the legal difficulties which seem to beset the Valhalla Memorial park promoters, the work of improving the park out in the southwestern part of Burbank goes on. It is said that $170,000 has already been expended on this structure and there is still considerable work to do on it before it is completed. Practically all of the white marble work is completed and the workmen are well along with the stonework of which the trimmings are being made.

It is the opinion of Mrs. H. P. Rogers, president of the Burbank P.-T. A. federation, that teachers, as taxpayers, have a right to say how the schools they help support should be managed, and therefore have a right to express their opinion on the subject of annexing the Burbank school district to Los Angeles. One local teacher paid $500 in 1924-25 taxes, she states, and another teacher paid $200.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert O'Keefe of Salt Lake City are visiting with Mr. O'Keefe's mother, Mrs. M. O. O'Keefe, and sister, Mrs. T. H. Rotherhan, at the Darms hotel. They are delighted with Burbank and plan to return here.

Mrs. A. E. Benedict of Colton has arrived in Burbank for a visit of a few days with her mother, Mrs. M. J. Spencer, of 411 Orange Grove avenue.

DEATHS – FUNERALS

ELIZABETH E. BALDWIN

Miss Elizabeth Elvira Baldwin, daughter of Mrs. Edward Baldwin of 248 South Gates street, Los Angeles, died Wednesday, December 31, 1924, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Walter Measday, 1601 Hill drive. Funeral services were held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the L. G. Scovern chapel on South Brand boulevard, Rev. William C. Isett, pastor of Amanda Chapel, Carthay Center, officiating. Interment took place in Forest Lawn Memorial park. The deceased came of a distinguished family that traces its ancestry in direct line from a member of the New Haven, Connecticut colony. This ancestor emigrated from Sussex, England, in 1637 and was one of the company of adventurers that arrived in the ship John Martin. A descendant of the original Baldwin was one of the founders of Newark, New Jersey, more than 200 years ago, and it was from this branch that Miss Baldwin's family descends. Miss Baldwin is survived by her mother, widow of Lieut. E. Baldwin of the Thirteenth New York light artillery, a hero of Gettysburg and many battles of the Civil war; by her sister, Mrs. Walter Measday; a brother, Edward R. Baldwin of New York City, and by a niece, Miss Grace E. Mathews.

Robisons Entertaining Sea Scout From Avalon

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Robison and son, H. Benjamin Robison, field Boy Scout executive of Pasadena district council, have as holiday guests a group of Avalon Sea Scouts. New Year's eve they attended the performance of the Dobinson Players. Yesterday Mr. Robison and the Scouts motored to Pasadena, calling on William Wrigley, jr., at "Shadows" on South Orange Grove avenue, and later witnessing the Rose Tournament parade. In the afternoon they attended the football game.

Exhibit of Redwoods Shown at Library

Mrs. Martella Lane, California artist, who has achieved fame for her pictures of California redwood trees, and for her active interest in preserving these trees, will give an illustrated lecture at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the public library under the auspices of the Glendale Art association. Mrs. Roy Ballagh, president of the association, announced the exhibit would last two weeks.
